

P2 – David, Male, 22.

Interviewer: “Can you elaborate on your management style when it comes to improving productivity?” Manager: “Well, I believe in strictly monitoring my workers to ensure they stay on track and meet their goals. It's important to keep a close eye on them to maintain higher productivity levels.”

Interviewer: “Can you give an example of how closely monitoring your employees has helped improve productivity in the past?” Manager: “Absolutely. By closely watching my team members, I was able to identify a bottleneck in our process and address it promptly. This monitoring led to a significant increase in productivity.”

Interviewer: “How do you balance the need for close monitoring with giving employees autonomy?” Manager: “I believe in closely monitoring my team to improve their performance. I do not empower them to make decisions within their role. However, this has proven to be effective in improving overall productivity.”
